

Useful Information.

Skillywadden Barn is not on the main sewer.

All waste water is processed on site, in a system of tanks under the drive, and once cleaned it is returned to the nearby stream. Visitors are requested to flush toilet paper only into the toilets, not thicker items such as make up removal tissues, tampons etc. as they damage the system.

Eco – friendly cleaning materials, washing up liquid and other necessities are provided for visitors use.

How to find Skillywadden Barn

From A30 and the North: Follow the A30 until you reach the island where you take the right turn for St Ives on the A3074. This takes about two hours from the M5 at Exeter. Take the next turning on the left marked for Lelant Downs. At Lelant Downs bear right and follow the road (about three miles) until you come to the T junction with the B3311. Turn left here and then almost immediately right off the B3311 onto a narrow lane. This is signposted to Towednack. Follow this road. It curves quite a lot.

is on the left just after the bend. It has two sets of wooden gates.

If you miss this turning, the next building you see on the left is an old school house which is being done up, then a signpost for Towednack Church. You need to turn back, or you will end up on the road to St. Ives.

From St. Ives: Take the coast road signposted for Zennor and St. Just. Follow this past Rosewall Hill on your left, around some steep curves, then take a small turning on the left signposted for Towednack. Stay on this lane until you see a right turn, just after the Church, for Amalveor, Georgia and Embla. Take this turning, and follow the lane over the little bridge to Skillywadden.
